

What is Docker?

Self-contained, isolated software environments called "containers"

Create, share, and deploy applications & services

• Popular to in production environments

What is Docker?

- Self-contained, isolated software environments called “containers”
- Create, share, and deploy applications & services
- Popular tool in production environments

But how is this useful for research?